BRYAN CONTROLS LEADERS OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

He Urges Followers Of Democracy To Aid In The Administration Plan For Railroads.

(SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.)

Washington, Jan. 24.—While in Washington William Jennings Bryan talked with the president and leaders of his own party in favor of a combination of forces between the Democrats and Republicans favoring railroad rate legislation to control the situation in the senate. As a result of his advice a movement has been started by the Democrats to form such a coalition. The solid Democratic vote of thirty-three can be cast for rate legislation, and it is estimated that at least eighteen republican senators from northwestern states will join in overriding the interstate commerce committee and forcing action. In line with this movement Representative Burgess of Texas, in a speech in the house, pledged to the president the support of the house Democrats in the effort to reform the railroads.

The meeting broke up in a stormy scene, when J. E. Goodrich of Kansas City, who is opposed to Thomas K. Niedringhaus, the caucus nominee, walked out of the meeting, followed by several others. It is declared that L. A. Coolidge, a newspaper man from Washington, who has been here several days, was a personal representative of President Roosevelt, who is said to be anxious to have the factional differences settled and Niedringhaus returned as United States senator. Coolidge left, but the rumor that he represented the administration is not confirmed.

MAKING READY FOR STRUGGLE

Workingmen Loot Rifle Factory, and Then Secure Ammunition For Their Guns.

GAINING STRENGTH EACH HOUR

Matters Shape Themselves Into A Revolution Rather Than A Mere Riot Of The Poor Workingmen.

(SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.)

St. Petersburg, Jan. 24.—At twelve-thirty o'clock thousands of strikers are assembling on the Nevsky prospect. The outgoing trains are carrying the wives and children of many prominent citizens to outlying places of safety. A number of the government printers resumed work this morning, but a thousand are still idle. The workmen are rolling through the streets in small groups, but as yet have offered no violence. During the night the strikers had torn down the telephone wires which ran from St. Petersburg to Esarkoselo. They also attempted to plunder the big Universal Provider store, but were repelled. Fifteen hundred workmen broke into the Sestroresk rifle factory and plundered all the rifles in the narrow guage railway from St. Petersburg to Sestroresk and are reported to have destroyed a section of the railway running from St. Petersburg to Moscow.

Seize Ammunition

It is reported the strikers forced an entrance into the Gentloff ammunition factory, and seized large quantities of explosives and cartridges. The rebels, it is learned, intend to march forty thousand strong to Tsarskoe Selo and make another attempt to see the czar. If they persist there will be a repetition of Sunday's slaughter. The clash, however, will be more of a serious affair as the strikers are now fairly well equipped with arms. The revolt is spreading, especially in the Moscow district. Employees of the Bachrushin, Michaeloff, Emilander, and Schrader factories have joined the strike. The Moscow strikers are marching about the city gathering recruits. The printers have all struck and there will be no newspaper in Moscow tomorrow. The gas and electric light works are guarded by troops. There is no fighting thus far.

Losses Small

The official Messenger today states there was no serious clashes yesterday. There are no casualties. This places the number of dead in the Sunday fighting at 90 and wounded at 333.

Are in Sympathy

Three hundred and fifty attorneys held a meeting and passed a resolution of sympathy with the strikers protesting against the government in provoking bloodshed and declining to plead in the courts.

at Moscow

Up to noon a thousand strikers had quit work. Ten thousand are now out and employees of the Hoppers factory this morning refused to quit, but a mob of five hundred strikers forced an entrance to the factory and demolished the machinery. The employees of the tanneries were persuaded to join the strikers this afternoon. All the arms have been removed from the gunsmith shops, most of which have been closed to prevent the strikers obtaining any weapons.

Circulating Proclamation

The strike commenced at Vilna and the town is quiet. The strikers today are circulating proclamations and the people are eagerly accepting the documents, which are signed "The Russian Social Democracy." One proclamation is dated yesterday. After describing the bloodshed of Sunday it says: "Who directed the soldiers to aim their rifles and fire bullets at the breasts of laborers? It was the emperor, grand dukes, ministers, generals and nobles of the court. They are murderers. Slay them. To arm, comrades. Seize the arsenals and arms at the depots and gunsmiths. Lay low the prison walls. Liberate the defenders of freedom. Demolish the police stations and all the government state buildings. We must throw down the emperor and the government and have our own government. Long live the revolution."

Still Confident

The authorities are still confident they have the situation well in hand. Father Gopon's popularity is unimpaired, but the social democracy is fast assuming the leadership and urging the people to violence. Gopon has sent a letter to the social democrats urging them not to spoil the labors of the triumph by taking up arms and resorting to violence. His appeal failed to pacify the social democrats or workmen who are clamoring for vengeance.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 24.—Revolution, challenged by massacre, has replied with dynamite!

A bomb was thrown among a group of soldiers at the corner of Sadovaya and Vosnesensky streets at half past 7 o'clock Monday evening, and several soldiers were killed.

Another bomb was thrown among a regiment of Cossacks, near the winter palace. The revolutionists hourly are growing bolder, and there seems every prospect of a great revolution and that this unhappy city is threatened with a reign of terror that may equal that of the French revolution.

Imperial Family Flees.

The czar and the imperial family are in flight to Peterhof, his summer palace. He has been followed by the danger express.

The flight of the imperial family from Tsarskoe Selo was decided upon after three and a half days of secrecy and frequent change of dwelling, from palace to palace. The emperor hurriedly left Tsarskoe Selo Tuesday morning, when the news came that the strikers from Kolpino had chosen that palace as the goal of their march. Despite the reassuring statements of the court dignitaries and military men, the czar is alleged to have lost his nerve immediately and to have announced his purpose to flee.

Many sensational rumors are in circulation that the czar will leave Russia. One report says the emperor has gone on board the royal yacht "Standart," and that he will take refuge in Copenhagen until the trouble blows over.

Another report insists that he will go to the Crimea.

Revolution Has Begun.

The revolution has begun in earnest. As this is written the capital literally is a city of dreadful night. All the lights have been extinguished and the streets are in complete darkness. The tramp and clatter of soldiers armed to the teeth, who patrol the streets, mingle with the sound of occasional shots and the detonation of the deeper and more sinister explosions of dynamite.

Everywhere in the suburbs where there are soldiers or public buildings bombs are being thrown. Many frightened inhabitants are fleeing from the city or barricading themselves in their homes.

Armed men are reported to be marching to the aid of the strikers from various quarters. Twelve thousand strikers from the Caploff works, sixteen miles away, are stated to have been taken a detachment of troops told off to deal with them, and to be advancing on St. Petersburg.

Soldiers Fire on Strikers.

At Kolpino, twelve miles up the river, a body of workmen who had started for St. Petersburg to join the strikers were stopped and fired upon by soldiers. Accounts as to the number killed or wounded conflict.

It was officially reported at 10:30 Monday evening that the workmen had secured a supply of arms. They raided a government store at the far end of the outer military position of the suburbs and seized 1,800 rifles. They reached Sestroresk, near the Finland frontier, before the commander of the advanced troops learned of the raid. The store also contained cartridges.

It is rumored that workmen have attacked the cartridge factory on the Viborg side of the city and that the soldiers fired several volleys at them, killing and wounding unknown numbers. This is not confirmed. Neither is the report that workmen at Cronstadt have attacked and plundered the arsenal there and are marching on St. Petersburg. It is also alleged that five drosky drivers have been killed by strikers for refusing to join the strike.

The civil department of the court of justice and several other public departments suspended work Monday owing to the refusal of lawyers to attend courts.

Among the many rumors is one that the drosky drivers are joining the strikers and that they intend to barricade the Nevsky prospect with their sledges.

Liberty Will Rise.

The people are not discouraged by Sunday's catastrophe. They declare the cause of Russian liberty lies crushed for only the moment. Sunday's attempt to break the fetters of oppression had no chance of success unless a considerable section of the army had taken the side of the people. Serious dissatisfaction exists among a large portion of the troops, especially in the infantry and artillery, but it is without organization.

So it happened that the Russian army gained its first victory since the war began over its own countrymen in the streets of its own capital. The consequence is there remains no loyalty in St. Petersburg, save among the czar's Cossacks.

The hospital officials, the custodians of the sheds filled with corpses, the

Prices in Dentistry

Most of the local dentists belong to a society in which they have agreed over their written signatures to maintain a certain scale of prices.

Now see how this high-priced business works: The Dental Society price for a common gold crown is $10. I am putting on hundreds of them, the equal in all respects to the above, at just half their price; namely, $5.

The reason I can do this is that "I AM NOT IN THE TRUST."

Another reason for my low prices: I had rather work for a LOT OF PEOPLE and make friends of them all by REASONABLE fees than to only have an OCCASIONAL PATIENT and to have to charge him so much that he won't come again.

Living expenses are tremendous these times and no matter how heavy your income may be, you, no doubt, will be thinking "HOW YOU CAN CUT SOMEWHERE IN YOUR FAMILY EXPENSE BILL." The above then is a matter which will interest you strongly.

Janesville Daily Gazette, Tuesday, January 24, 1865.—Accidental Death.—Wm. Trask, a brakeman on the C. & N. W. R. R. was killed last night just after the train had left the Crystal Lake Station. In attempting to get onto the engine from the front car, his foot slipped and he fell between the car and the engine—the whole train passing over him. He was not missed until the train reached Woodstock, when an engine and the necessary assistance went to find him. The remains were found and taken to Woodstock where the inquest was held, and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above facts, after which his remains were brought to this city where his parents reside.

Arrested on Charge of False Swearing.—A young man named William Graham of Beloit was arrested a short time ago by the Provost Marshal for alleged false swearing, he having filed a certificate in August, 1864, that he was an alien and had never voted, when it was shown that his name was on the poll list of a charter election in 1862. Should the young man be convicted it will prove an expensive way of avoiding the draft.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE.

The expected has happened and Governor La Follette is honored by a place in the United States senate. This action of the legislature will be no surprise to men who have watched the trend of events with unprejudiced vision.

At the close of the national convention the governor laid his plans to capture the legislature, and while his opponents were waiting for the decision of the supreme court he was busily engaged in the work of organization. He succeeded and is now rewarded.

It has been claimed that Mr. Stephenson, Mr. Dsch and Judge Webb would be disgruntled, and that serious ruptures would follow if the governor did not use his influence in their interests, but the strong endorsement of the governor should satisfy the other candidates that he is the one and only man wanted by a majority of the legislature.

Governor La Follette will be criticized for accepting the high office of United States senator and some of his friends are already saying that his profession of reform and his professed interest in the welfare of the state was simply a pretext.

It should be remembered by this class of critics that the governor possesses a versatile character. He can be governor in name until the first of March and governor in fact for an indefinite period. A majority of the people are satisfied with anything that he does and if he desires to hold the double office it will be considered all right.

The state has never produced but one La Follette. He is a remarkable man in many ways, and the men who do not like him are forced to admire his courage and indomitable persuasion. Three times he has been elected to the office of governor against most stubborn opposition and now he goes to the senate as the climax of a spectacular political career.

What he will accomplish in that august body remains to be seen. He is certainly entitled to congratulations. It should be remembered that this is a reform era. The president is threatened with the disease, and the governors of two or three states have been elected on reform issues. The Wisconsin delegation has declared in favor of tariff reform and Senator La Follette will find many sympathizers in Washington. It looks very much as though the nation had the measles but hadn't time to bother with the disease.

The country as well as the state will survive but before the epidemic runs its course Wisconsin will be shouting for president; R. M. La Follette.

THE REVOLT IN RUSSIA.

The uprising in Russia is the all-absorbing topic, and what the final outcome will be is still a matter of conjecture. Conditions were bad enough for Russia with the defeat which recently came to her army in the fall of Port Arthur, but internal strife is infinitely worse. The revolt is called a labor trouble but that is simply a pretext.

The nation has long been cursed with Nihilists and Anarchists, and thousands of them have been banished to Siberia. Since the nation has been engaged in war with Japan, but little attention has been paid to these elements, and they have gathered strength sufficient to organize.

Russia is by no means a model nation. The masses are serfs, and the hand of tyranny is very oppressive. The army is composed of men who are fighting not because of patriotism, but because of compulsion. They are tired of war and anxious to quit. Poverty and suffering is the common lot of the common people, and the present up-rising is a protest against conditions which are seldom paralleled in any nation.

RUSSIA THE GRIM.

Begining their little father for aid to relieve them from their sufferings, thousands of Russian workmen and their wives and children have been shot down in cold blood while their "little father" has fled beyond the Neva to a place of safety where he is closely guarded by regiments of three Cossacks and trusted soldiers.

Never since the days of the French Revolution have the streets of any European city been drenched with blood as were the streets of St. Petersburg yesterday. The result will not be the same as during the Reign of Terror in Paris. Then the common people secured arms and fought their enemies the aristocrats, now they are unarmed and the soldiers have not joined them but are fighting against them. Russia the Grim is well named.

Tom Lawson sees dark days ahead. But how will it be possible for them to get possession of the wealth of this country with the Boston man on guard?

Arizona's passionate desire for statehood has weakened considerably since it learned that the plans proposed will not give it an independent set of federal jobs.

Before accepting Tom Lawson's theory that ten men will soon own all the country, John D. Rockefeller would like to have some one show him the other nine.

Among the permanent residents of Washington, D. C., subscribing to the inaugural parade seems to rank as the chief function of citizenship, just as voting does elsewhere.

Congress can legislate fast enough when it comes to burning up the people's money. The house the other day passed 259 pension bills in 103 minutes.

Senator Smoot should be careful or he may be trapped into admitting that he is acquainted with some of the mormon elders.

Mr. Bryan says that President Roosevelt has stolen the democratic thunder. Mr. Bryan should get his thunder patented hereafter.

That seat in the New York stock exchange which has just been sold for $70,000 is not half as comfortable as an old $10 rocking chair.

When he gets an opportunity to tell the senate how good a republican he is, Senator Smoot puts the loud pedal down hard.

If the courts will give it a good opportunity the beef trust feels sure that it can demonstrate that it is not in existence.

Mr. Bryan is starting in early to re-organize the democratic party, as he realizes that he has a four-year job ahead of him.

Having started out on an area of reform Missouri naturally does not see how it can very well stand for Neidringhaus.

As a defense the Russian gunners who fired at the czar will set up the plea that they did not know it was loaded.

Mike Donovan is naturally proud of having boxed with the president and being still in a condition to talk about it.

It might be shown that the mule that voted in Colorado was quite as well qualified as were some of the other voters.

Some of the lobbyists and others who were against Polk wish they had been a little harder against him.

Brodie Duke is not insane and he has also discovered since he sobered up that he is not single.

In literary quality and variety Gessler Rosseau's yarns surpass even the theories of the detectives.

Since the war began, China has turned over once or twice, but it always resumed its cap.

One reason for believing the gunners meant to shoot the czar is that they did not hit him.

It also happened that the gun was "accidentally" trained in the direction of the czar.

Kaiser Wilhelm may yet be obliged to establish office hours in which to settle strikes.

Bill Stone is a full dose. Why should Missouri swallow Neidringhaus also?

John Mitchell appears to be distinctly in the hands of his friends.

Any one who thinks it is fun to be czar of Russia has queer tastes.

Tom Lawson has tapped a fresh hoghead of fun.

PRESS COMMENT.

Racine Journal: Honorable ambitions in this state haven't evidently much of a chance. They depend upon the inside wheels.

Marquette Eagle-Star: Miss Fola La Follette has arrived at a point where she divides the honors of the stage with her father.

El Paso Herald: Judge Swayne is the first federal judge to be impeached for 75 years.

La Crosse Chronicle: Eight thousand four hundred and eighty-two homicides were committed during 1904, of which 4,181 were caused by quarrels.

Green Bay Gazette: When Uncle Ike tells about the quarrel of a million the Free Press is not certain whether he is displaying base ingratitude or base of supplies.

Madison Journal: South Dakota must be getting prosperous. It is planning to do away with its divorce industry and live respectable.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Fortunately each spontaneous demand of the people that Gov. La Follette accept an office coincides with the desire of Gov. La Follette to occupy the particular office selected by the people.

Oshkosh Northwestern: And then again, would Gov. La Follette trust Mr. Stephenson, or any other man for that matter, to take the senatorship and relinquish the office after enjoying a couple of years or so of the "glory"?

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The dispatches state that Gov. Fok could be elected United States senator if he would accept the place, but that he has positively declined. The Missouri governor evidently belongs in a class all by himself.

Edgerton Reporter: The resolution introduced in the assembly Tuesday for the printing of 10,000 copies of the governor's message for distribution shows that the reform spirit is much alive among the lawmakers.

Minneapolis Tribune: We don't know exactly where we are at. At the election of a Sunday school superintendent in York, Pa., the ballot box was stuffed, while an authentic account had it that the Kansas legislature opened with all members repeating the Lord's prayer.

Superior Telegram: A new daily newspaper in Chicago announces that it will not publish a word about murders and other crimes. Perhaps it will only tell about the good little boy who loved to go to Sunday school and died young. The rush for the news every day when that paper comes out is doubtless something fierce.

Exchange: It is amusing to read some of the reports of election expenditures, required by state law, by candidates for office during the recent election. Kenosha and Racine men did not pay much attention to it. The most extraordinary report was that of Calvin Stewart, who ran for congress against E. A. Cooper, of Racine. Mr. Stewart shows that he expended $345 and most of the money was spent in "exploitation." One of the large items in the account is for "workers who did not work, $50," and a similar amount was paid out for "cigars and foolishness."

Waupaca Post: The more one reads the resolutions passed by the various industrial associations in different parts of the country, the more one realizes the truth of Gen. Hancock's saying that "The tariff is mainly a local issue." The people in each community are willing the tariff should be lowered upon every article which they do not use in their manufactures, but they want the tariff retained upon everything which might affect their particular business. It's a hard economic question at best, and when you mix it up with politics, it is not all easy of solution.

Evening Wisconsin: A dispatch from Marinette states that Isaac Stephenson of his own volition clearly defined his position on the senatorial question. He had not been at Madison and does not intend to go there to contend for the senatorship. He adds he is in "a receptive mood" and would gratefully receive the nomination for senator, but he will not go to Madison. Isaac Stephenson's position is worthy of a man who has been so honored and so distinguished as he has been in the politics of Wisconsin and Mr. Stephenson will make additional friends by the manly and high-minded course he is pursuing.

St. Paul Globe: The opposition he met in his own party was bitter and strong. We think it is hardly too much to say that, if his senatorial ambitions had been brought to the front then, he would have been defeated for governor. Now this is not to question the right or the propriety in any sense of Gov. La Follette or any other man aspiring to a senatorship. What is open to question is running for one office while aiming at another. Mr. La Follette can perhaps render some service in the United States senate, although in ability and knowledge of large national questions he is something less than a pigmy in comparison with Senator Spooner. What we assert is that, if he wished to be senator, he should have made his campaign for the senatorship and permitted the man who is to be governor to make a campaign for the governorship.

GETTING READY FOR THE STRUGGLE

chiefs of police of the districts again give the same numbers of killed and wounded in Sunday's massacre at 2,000 and 5,000. These facts are known to the residents of St. Petersburg, whose anger has been turned to exasperation by the Grand Duke Vladimir's impudent attempt to deceive the czar by the trifling record of casualties published in the official Messenger.

Only one man in twelve among the troops was served with ball cartridges on Monday, with the exception of the Cossacks.

PREACH INSURRECTION.

Warsaw, Jan. 24.—The events in St. Petersburg have agitated the whole land, for in spite of official reticence and vigilance of the police they are becoming known throughout Russia.

A meeting of the workmen here Sunday declared for solidarity of laborers everywhere, and demanded the immediate calling of a parliament.

Handbills have been distributed throughout this city preaching insurrection and calling upon the people to rise and arm themselves from the arsenals.

UPRISING STARTS IN MOSCOW.

Moscow, Jan. 24.—The flames of revolt against oppression, lighted in St. Petersburg on Sunday by the flashes of Cossack guns, have spread to Moscow.

From Moscow the news of the revolt has gone to Kharkoff, to Odessa, to Kieff, to Sevastopol. In each of these great cities the workmen are planning to join the uprising.

The news that men, women and children had been shot down by order of the grand dukes created the wildest anger when it reached here. Workmen of Moscow sent back word that the cry of vengeance was sweeping over the empire.

The workmen of Moscow began to strike Monday morning, although Thursday had been the day fixed. The news from St. Petersburg has tended the event.

Big Plants Are Idle.

The strike was inaugurated at noon Monday, when 5,000 employees of the Bromley iron works met during the noon hour and adopted resolutions declaring that it was impossible to continue working in the face of the appeal from their co-workers at the capital.

Then the 5,000 ironworkers marched in a body to other plants near by calling upon their fellow workmen in other lines of industry to join them.

As the afternoon wore on the marching procession grew larger, for every plant, factory, mill and workshop visited was closed promptly and the employees added their number to the parade.

Already the largest industrial plants of Moscow are idle.

A general strike in every line of industry has been called for Thursday, when a great demonstration will take place.

Grand Duke Sergius, governor of Moscow, is especially hated by the workmen. His palace outside the city is like a citadel. He is known to be making military preparations on a large scale for handling the demonstration on Thursday. He has, it is stated, declared that he will use artillery if necessary.

There is considerable anxiety in the city. It is known the workmen generally are provided with firearms, despite the regulations forbidding them having them.

HOLDS OATH SACRED.

Senator Smoot Refuses to Divulge Ceremonies of Endowment House.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Reed Smoot, United States senator from Utah, on cross-examination, absolutely refused before the senate investigating committee to testify in regard to the endowment ceremonies. He also asserted that it was not his business to call to account President Smith of the Mormon church because Mr. Smith had admitted to the committee that he was living in violation of the laws of the land. Three other witnesses refused to divulge the character of the endowment ceremonies.

Senator Smoot has refused to reveal the endowment secrets on constitutional reasons, saying: "I made a vow, not an oath, with my God, not with any man, not with the president of the church or with a living soul, but I did make a vow that I would keep these endowment ceremonies sacred and not reveal them to anybody, and I have kept that all my life, and if I went out of the church tomorrow and remained out of the church until I was gray-headed I would never feel that it was my duty that I should divulge what little I even remember of them."

ADMIRAL FLAYS GEN. STOESSSEL

TRUE HERO OF THE DEFENSE

Criticism for the Commander is Interwoven With Praise for Gen. Kondratenko, Whose Activity Wins Admiration.

Tokio, Jan. 24.—A Russian admiral who has just joined the prisoners from Port Arthur now in Japan, characterizes the surrender before the garrison had reached its extremity, as a disgrace, bitterly criticizes Gen. Stoessel, and lauds Gen. Kondratenko, commander of the Seventh East Siberian rifle regiment, as the true hero of the defense of Port Arthur.

The admiral says Vice Admiral Makaroff, who commanded the Russian squadron at Port Arthur and who went down with the battleship Petropavlovsk on April 13, dictated the policy of inactivity on the part of the squadron. Makaroff took the ground it would be hopeless, owing to the inferiority of the Russian naval strength, to engage the fleet of Vice Admiral Togo.

The admiral admits bitter friction existed between the army and navy, and intimates there is a probability of inquiry into this matter by court martial. He insists the Russians destroyed their warships at Port Arthur beyond any possibility of salvage by the Japanese.

Nogi to Teach Royal Children.

Gen. Nogi is to return to Tokio to receive an appointment formerly held by the late Count Kamamura, in connection with the rearing of the prince imperial's children. It is said he seemed almost unconscious of the need of sleep during the last weeks of the siege, and after the death of his elder son, news of which was brought him during the attack on 303 Meier hill, Gen. Nogi was found several times with his head in his hands, weeping.

Nogi's family is now extinct. The navy department is preparing strenuously for the second stage of the war.

During the last year the Japanese have captured twenty-three blockade runners, of which thirteen were Russian and seven British. The Japanese sacrificed seventeen vessels while blockading Port Arthur. The Russians sank nine transports and merchantmen. Three hundred officers and 17,511 men, prisoners of war from Port Arthur have arrived in Japan to date.

Refugees Reach Chefoo.

Chefoo, Jan. 24.—Thirteen junk, containing 500 men, women and children from Port Arthur, have arrived here. They were sent on board the British steamer Muenchen, which has been chartered by the Russian government to take them home. More than 2,000 Russian refugees are here now.

SEES NO HOPE FOR RUSSIAN PEOPLELOUIS BECKER TALKS ABOUT THE PRESENT OUTBREAK.

THE RIOTS WILL BE CHECKED

Janesville Man Who Lived Eight Years in Kief Says Masses Can not Be Efficiently Organized.

In the final outcome there is little or no hope for the common people, the masses who are blindly struggling to free themselves from the yoke of tyranny and oppression in Russia. This is the opinion of Louis Becker, a barber in the Wiscow shop, who spent several years of his life in the land of the czar. He says that the people are too ignorant. There is nothing to be expected of the soldiery, trained in the military service from boyhood, given only that education indispensable to the profession of arms, never permitted to even think of any other existing order save the one for which their lives and families are shaped. Many of the men in high rank are secretly nihilists but their only aim is to destroy one government that they may set up another, just as despotic, in which more personal advantage may be gained. The present czar, himself, was a nihilist—according to Mr. Becker—before his father was gotten out of the way. Every advantage is with the government. Controlling all the means of communication, it can swiftly prevent any attempt to unite the widely separated forces of discontent. Opposed to trained soldiery there might be many brave men who would fight valiantly for a cause but the thousands who constitute the great majority, possessed of the fear born of abject ignorance, cannot be relied upon for any help in this crisis. Hence, the Janesville man believes that the outbreak at this time can mean no more than a series of riots which will be swiftly put down by the overwhelming force of the soldiery.

Sympathies with the People
His sympathies are entirely with the people. Eight years of his life were spent in Kief, a city of 250,000 inhabitants, located 275 miles north-east of Odessa. His father was a surgeon for one of the government railways and moved into Russia from the German borderland. His mother and two brothers are still living in Kovno, a city of 75,000 inhabitants, located on the same parallel as Moscow and not far from the Russian border. While a boy young Becker saw the present czar several times and many more times had questions which rose from his inquiring mind hushed by his cautious father. One day they were half expressed. One day the soldiery found some forbidden information of sentiments set up in type in the shop of two printers who lived next door. The latter were promptly seized and carried off and no friendly overheard of them again. Indeed, no one dared even to inquire what had become of them.

Wrote About Spanish War
During the Spanish war, some years after he had come to this country, Mr. Becker received a letter from one of his brothers asking him about the Spanish war and what the probable outcome would be. The former answered this with a long explanation of the difference existing between conditions in Russia and this country, where men took up arms voluntarily and soldiers were not compelled to serve their country for a half a cent a day. That letter was never allowed to reach its destination. The Russian government permits no new ideas to find their way to its people. Education for the masses does not extend beyond what would be the third-reader stage in this country. Only the children of the wealthy land-holding class can attend the higher institutions of learning and the universities.

VALUABLE GIFTS TO THE LIBRARYA. A. JACKSON PRESENTS MANY PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

STATE DOCUMENTS DESIRED

University of Chicago Also a Donor
—Many New Books Have Been Placed on Shelves.

Within the past week the Janesville public library has been enriched by a large number of books purchased by the board and a number of valuable donations. A. A. Jackson has presented to the library a large number of public documents, more than a hundred in all. Congressman H. A. Cooper has also donated several public documents and that department of the library is now receiving particular attention. Recently the documents have been rearranged and an attempt will be made to secure a complete set of state documents and all other public records and papers that it is possible to obtain.

Commission to Have Exchange
Arrangements have been made for the collection of these volumes from those who wish to donate them to the library and they will be called for whenever the donor gives notice to the librarian of the gift. The state library commission will soon establish an exchange and all documents of which the Janesville library have two or more copies they will send to Madison and secure copies of those which they do not have.

The Decennial Publication
The University of Chicago has sent to the library the Decennial Publication. This is a work of ten volumes published every ten years and are for reference work, being a decennial encyclopedia. The books are a valuable addition to the library. They are beautifully bound in red.

Rack for New Books
Before the library moved into the Carnegie building all new books were placed together on a book-rack, where they could be examined and drawn without hunting through a shelf of older books before finding. A new periodical rack has been purchased and the book-rack used for the magazines heretofore has again been put in commission as a shelf for new books.

Popular Fiction Books
Among the new fiction books added to the list are "The Man on the Box" by McGrath, which will probably prove to be one of the most popular this coming year, and "Beverly of Graustark" by McCutcheon, which will without a doubt be in demand among all who have read McCutcheon's "Graustark" which appeared a few years ago. Other books, some of which are 1905 prints, are: Love in Chief, Weeks; Sweet Peggy, Harris; Pursuit of Phyllis, Bacon; Hearts in Exile, Oxeuham; Players and Vagabonds, Roseboro; Last Hope, Meriman; Son of Loyal Langbrithne, Howell; Leda Dameron, Nicholson; and Abbess of Vlaye, Weyman.

At the proposed meeting the discussion of the ways and means of forming a stock company for perfecting the organization of a team and securing a place in the state league will be endorsed. Letters received from John T. Powers, president of the league, state that the eight cities which will comprise the league, this includes Janesville, have now been secured, and that Janesville is the last to formally organize a company to handle the team. The meeting tonight should be well attended, as matters of importance are to be taken up. All those interested in baseball should be sure and be present.

On the opening of its engagement last evening the Himmelpfort Imperial Stock Co. attracted the largest audience that ever greeted a repertoire company in Janesville. Every seat was sold before seven o'clock last evening and after standing room had been allowed a large number, fully 300, were turned away. The company is composed of competent entertainers and the production of "The Lost Paradise," interspersed with numerous specialties, proved very pleasing to the big audience. Of the latter, Dillon & Garland's topical songs and the kinetoscope pictures were especially noteworthy. Specialties will be changed for every performance. Prof. Hall and his troupe of performing dogs are billed to make their first appearance this evening.

Have Scheduled Games for Saturday.

At Rockford Saturday evening the boys and girls' basketball teams of the Janesville high school will play. The boys are practicing regularly and though they will be playing in a gymnasium strange to them and familiar to their opponents, they have bright prospects of beating the Forest city players, having defeated them here last Friday night by a score of 52 to 18. The girls' team have not as yet played together and the Saturday contest will be their initial game. Under the Spalding association's rules for women's teams, which have been adopted by both competitors, there are six players on each team—two forwards, two centers and two guards. The Janesville young ladies will play as follows: guards, Grace Winterroth and Cora Putnam; centers, Ruth Field and Verna Benson; forwards, Annie Smith and Lucy Fox (captain). No substitutes have yet been selected but there are about fifteen candidates for such places from which number the choice will be made.

An Animal Story For

The Dog's Mistake

A clown had a bulldog over whom he smugared a lot of paste and then covered him from head to feet with feathers. It made a very funny looking fellow of the dog, and everybody went to the circus to see him. They sold many pictures of themselves, and when the people put the money on the stage the clown would pick it up and keep it to buy food for them both and pay their board.

THEY SOLD MANY PICTURES.

am the show, and I should have all the money I make."
So he bit the clown on the leg and sent him home howling with pain.
Then the dog waited for people to come and buy his pictures. They came and took his pictures, but instead of paying for them left the show without giving any money. The dog barked at them, but his chain was so short he could not bite them, and they simply laughed at him.

While the dog was pondering on his hard lot the clown came back with a club and erected him over the head. The next day there was another dog in the show.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

GEORGE APPELEY

The finance committee authorized the payment of $150 to Officer John Brown for regular work in December and January. The transfer of saloon licenses from Michael Buoh to H. J. Lemmerhirt & Co. at 205 Wall street; and from F. P. & W. J. Croak to Fred Yungst at 27 North Main, was authorized. George Appeley was elected as constable from the third ward to succeed Wallace Cochrane, resigned, and H. M. Weaver was appointed special policeman without pay for the period from Jan. 12 to April 13. On an order introduced by Alderman Schwarz the fire and water committee was authorized to make repairs and improvements in the west side fire station dormitory and install a bathtub on the second floor.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

How a Cat Fooled the Cow

There was once a very smart cat who was very, very fond of milk, as all cats are. Now, this cat was accustomed to go into the dairy and help himself to the milk that stood there in the pails. When the milk was so low that she could not reach it she would deliberately upset the pail and then lap the milk from the ground.

"What are you doing there?" cried Mrs. Cow one day when she found the cat taking his daily midday meal of milk.

"Don't you know who I am?" cried the cat, in mock surprise.
"Of course I know who you are," replied Mrs. Cow. "You are the cat."

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THAT? EXCLAIMED THE COW.

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed the cat. "You are altogether mistaken. I am a calf, and I have a perfect right here."
"Then I must be growing blind," said the cow. "There is only one calf in this dairy, and you do not look anything like him to me."

"That is because your eyesight is so very poor," replied the cat, with a chuckle. "I am the calf, but you cannot see well enough to recognize me."
"It is very strange," mused the cow. "But then I guess I'm getting old and am not able to see as well as I could when I was younger."

So the cat continued to drink the milk, and every day would come back and get more, while the old cow looked on and wished she had a pair of spectacles like the dairymaid's father always wore.

But one day while the cat was drinking and the cow was looking who should come in but the calf himself!

And then didn't the old cow look! She looked the calf over well, and then she turned and looked the cat over well.

"Well, what do you think of that?" she exclaimed.
For a full minute she stood there and thought it all over, and then she suddenly threw her head down and caught Mr. Cat square on the tips of her horns. In another instant the cat was tossed fifty feet into the air clear over the top of the chicken house and into a hornets' nest on the other side.

By the time he got out of that new trouble he had learned a good lesson—never to try to deceive.—Atlanta Constitution.

Final Attack on Fort Fisher

A FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY

January 15, 1865

[Copyright, 1905, by G. L. Kilmer.]

FORT FISHER, N. C., the most powerful earthwork in the Confederacy, was carried by a bold assault on Jan. 15, 1865, after a heavy naval bombardment. The Federal transport fleet sailed from Fortress Monroe Jan. 6. The force was led by Major General Alfred H. Terry and numbered 8,000 men. Terry's orders were sealed and were to be opened when he was out at sea. His destination was not known to any one in the army or navy, except those who had to know it. Terry himself was ignorant of it until he broke the seals of his instructions out at sea. In these instructions he was told to communicate freely with Admiral D. D. Porter, commander of the fleet which was to cooperate in the attack, and seek to have entire harmony between the army and navy in the expedition.

Porter had a total of forty-eight vessels, which he formed in three lines, with a reserve. During the night they anchored off Fort Fisher, and on the morning of the 13th the New Ironsides ran up to within 1,000 yards. Some of the ironclads reached as near as 700 yards and got into position under a heavy fire. The landing of Terry's men was covered by several vessels not engaged in the bombardment. The troops went ashore on the seabeach about five miles above the fort and between it and the entrenched camps of General Bragg's Confederate army of Wilmington. By 2 o'clock p. m. the Federal troops and stores were safely landed, and General Paine's colored division pushed forward to Cape Fear river, the fort. But the batteries farther down the Confederate line could sweep the stretch of beach, which at that point was nearly half a mile wide, and the muskets in the fort did terrible execution. Three cannon in the fort poured canister into the assailants, and both General Whiting and Colonel Lamb stood on the parapet cheering the men at their work. The foremost body of sailors was nearly annihilated. The present commander of the north Atlantic squadron, Admiral Robley D. Evans, was an ensign at the head of sixty-four men. He was wounded four times, and all but two of his followers were killed or wounded.

The sailors were unaccustomed to land maneuvers and very soon showed the seriousness of this defect. Their officers, among them the gallant Lieutenant W. B. Cushing, rallied and led them as well as possible, but the forward columns halted under the walls of the fort, lying down to escape the fire from above, and the rear columns on closing up did the same. The delay thus caused was fatal. The Confederates were cheered by the sight of a sort of panic that had seized these novices in war and turned away to receive the land column, which was announced to be close at hand by the sharp musketry and the booming of grape shot guns on the north front. Simultaneously Whiting and Lamb saw in that direction three of General Curtis' battleflags on the ramparts adjoining the northwest bastion.

Curtis' advance had not been without difficulty. At places the hollows in the sand were filled with water, and this

THE FIRST COST OF DUCKS

Some Hints Which Will Aid in the Successful Managing of Duck Farm.

A trio of good, ordinary market stock should be purchasable for about seven dollars. Ducks are not like hens; they do not lay all the year round, but when they start they are attentive to the business of egg production daily, so that a couple of mature Pekins will provide you with a setting in six days. As you will want to keep some of the young ones for next year's stock, ask the breeder you buy from to ship you birds two years old, as their progeny is stronger.

Pekins never want to sit, so hens must be used for hatching until your stock is large enough to fill an incubator in a few days artificial duck raising is without doubt the best. Think of one farm in Massachusetts that markets 45,000 young ducks annually; sells two tons of feathers, and keeps 1,200 breeders! Would such an immense business be possible in the old way?

Though Pekins don't need water to swim in, they must have quantities to drink, always fresh and clean, which means that drinking pans must be refilled three times a day, and be so constructed as to enable the bird to submerge the whole bill in the water. Why? Because there are two small holes at the base of the bill which become clogged with feed or mud, and unless they can rinse these out when drinking the poor things smother.

A man who had a broiler farm near our place, three years ago, bought a hundred ducks' eggs, hatched out a fine lot of youngsters, and lost every one within two weeks through using a water fountain in the brooder that was too shallow. As I had lots of ducks at the time, he brought some over for me to see. There was nothing whatever the matter with them except that their little nostrils were all stopped up with the soft food. So pray remember, this very important direction when you are arranging drinking water for ducks, young or old—they must not be able to get into the pan with their feet or bodies, but their entire heads must have free entrance.—Pearson's.

HINT FOR BEEKEEPERS.

How to Secure Full Service of the Honey Makers Without Weakening the Colonies.

Apiarist Edwin Bevins claims to have discovered two ways in which laying worker colonies can be disposed of so as to get all the service out of the bees that they can render and yet keep the numbers of the colonies up to what it was before.

One way is to place the hive containing the laying workers over a strong colony with a fertile queen, placing a newspaper with a small hole in it between the two hives, says the New York Farmer. The bees will unite peacefully, and when considerable worker-brood appears in the upper hive the bees can be placed on another stand and the bees will rear a queen from the brood, if the old queen can be introduced about three days after the removal of the hive.

The other plan involves the taking of a couple of frames of hatching brood from a hive and placing them in another hive over a strong colony, with a frame having a wire cloth nailed to both sides of it between the two hives.

Thus a fertile queen and her escort are released on two combs, and in a few days there will be a nucleus strong enough to take care of the queen. This hive is then set down by the side of the hive holding the laying workers.

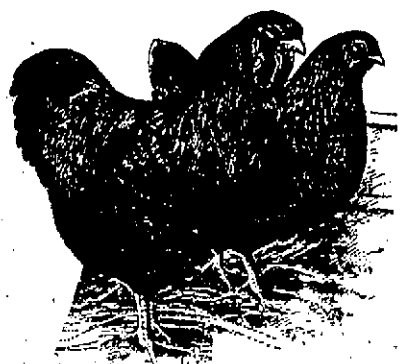

Every two or three days a frame with the bees must be transferred from the laying worker hive to the nucleus. By the time all but two of the frames are placed in the new hive the queen is at work there and everything is harmonious.

As regards the two frames taken to form the nucleus, they can be returned to the places from which they were taken, or these places can be filled by the frames remaining unused in the laying-worker hive.

Home Health Club

By DAVID H. REEDER, Ph. D., M. D. La Porte, Ind.

For some time I have been promising to tell you something about scrofula, and glandular swellings in the neck which are frequently of a scrofulous nature. I wonder how many of you know that the word scrofula, which is the origin of the word scrofula, means sow, and that the true meaning of scrofula is sow disease?

It is supposed to originate in the use of pork for food, and my observations are that when persons of a scrofulous nature or tendency use pork freely, they are made much worse, while leaving pork and pork products entirely out of their diet seems to be very beneficial.

In considering this disease, the first point to which attention should be called is found in the idea that so persistently connects this malady with the blood, as if that were its chief source. It is this idea that leads patients to swallow so many fancied remedies with a view toward purifying, in some way, the circulating stream. I cannot too often point out the truth that this same blood that is found in the gland swollen with scrofulous matter is passing through over so many other glands, in such a way as to create and maintain perfectly healthy tissue.

On the neck, especially under the chin, you see an enlarged gland. Well, there is blood passing into that gland, and from it also, and the same blood is passing to and from many other glands. They are not swelling, nor are they showing any sign of anything at all being wrong with them. How, then, can one ascribe the tumefaction to the blood, when it is causing no swelling elsewhere?

Then another point to be discussed is the impression that the vital force of the nervous system generally, and of these glands particularly, requires to be reduced. Acting upon this thought, bromide of potassium internally, and iodine externally, are used with destructive effect.

By this false notion both the blood and the nerve substance are terribly injured. There is a little hard lump in that neck; well, bromide of potassium is "liquefactive," so say our best authorities. Why not, then, give it to liquefy this swelling? Iodine has something of the same effect on the outside as bromide has within. Why not use this also? The reply is of vital moment. Both of these drugs destroy nerve matter, and do so more rapidly when that substance is in a state of health than when diseased. You can easily see that with the iodine, for the skin soon gives way under the painting, and if it is long continued the whole system of the patient is undermined.

It is also an erroneous idea which leads to the lancing of such a swelling, and the attempt to extract the matter which has collected in the gland does more harm than good. It is utterly uncalled for, as the pus, if any, can all be absorbed and eliminated without any piercing at all.

To form a good clear idea of what is wanted, it is necessary to investigate and determine how all the various substances which form the body are carried and distributed. It is found that it is by passing through the sides of vessels in which the blood is carried all over the body. A gland is just a peculiarly constructed tissue into which the blood enters that a special substance may be extracted from it. For an easy example, take the salivary gland. The blood passes into it in order that the saliva may be extracted. The saliva passes through the sides of the capillaries and the blood is retained and goes on to its work elsewhere.

Now let us consider the little gland under the chin which has become swollen and hard. The gland has properly performed its function, say, for nine years (if that is the age of the child), but somehow it has lost the power of eliminating a special substance, and that material thickens and accumulates and swells it. If the process goes on other glands become involved and enlarge and harden also. If reducing treatment of any kind is applied to the neck, it is easy to see how bad the result must be. Now for the remedy. The membranous substance of the whole body must be excited to vigorous action—the healthy more than the unhealthy parts, and at the same time an element which is lacking must be supplied in the form of tissue or cell salts. Dr. Schuessler's discovery of the cell salts in attenuated doses is especially valuable in scrofula. They can usually be secured at any homeopathic drug store in tablet form and, when properly selected, soon show their powerful and beneficial effects.

Merely poulticing the little swelling in the neck will do little, if any, good. A stimulating rubbing, or, better still, skillful manipulation over the whole body once a day, would be the chief thing. Prof. Kirk says of this rubbing: "I had lately handed to me a specimen of what to me is a new, but very desirable, substance for this purpose. It is the oil of mustard seed. I have been accustomed to use cayenne in decoction, and I cannot say that it has failed; but this new oil is so gentle and beautiful that I dare say it will be popular, if once it has a fair trial." If the whole body is rubbed over with a stimulant like this, or, better still, a vegetable liquid remedy of which I have so often told you, for a quarter of an hour, once a day, just enough to make the application delightful, the whole vital system will be improved. This of itself would be a long step toward a cure.

Light food taken frequently, and in rather small quantities, in such troubles, is better than hearty meals. But no one will expect a cure in such cases as these if indulging in indigestibles. I hardly need say that only moderate labor should be performed. When there is such delicacy of constitution as this trouble implies it is impossible to cure, or even to save life, if over-pressure of work is required. The vital force is not, in reality, sufficient for even light labor, and it is irrational to expect a cure if that force is drawn upon and drained away in excessive toil. The child at school, or the young person at labor, both compelled to work beyond their strength, cannot, while doing so, be restored to health. Many cases have entirely baffled all efforts until the pressure of work was lessened, when, after a rest, a cure was effected.

CLUB NOTES.

Washington.—Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind. Dear Sir:—Can you please tell me the right name of the enclosed herb? The natives call it swamp tea, that is the Siwash Indians. In pioneer times the whites used it as a tea also. They claim it is good for kidney trouble, either to steep as tea or to eat the leaves raw. Would be pleased to hear from you in regard to the right name of the herb, and if it has any commercial value. Yours respectfully, Mrs. F. W.

The sample submitted was something with which I was not familiar, and I therefore sent it to Parke, Davis & Co., of Detroit, Mich., with a request to have it classified. The substance of their reply is as follows:

"We beg to report that the sample of leaves submitted for examination proves to be Ledum latifolium or Labrador tea."

"This drug is of little interest to us, and, in fact, we believe it is used in medicine only to a very small extent. What little we require for special purposes we are in the habit of buying in New York at a price of about 25 or 30 cents per pound. However, as possibly you know, we do not list the drug in any form in our price list."

Ashtum.—Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind. Dear Sir:—I would like to ask you a few questions regarding my health and would be very thankful for any suggestion which you can give me.

First—I have been subject to taking cold easily and have had a cough for the last 20 years. Last May I was taken seriously ill. My physician said I had tuberculosis of the right lung. I was blocked to the third rib. However, I got over that attack, and have not coughed any since July. But for the last six weeks my throat or tonsils feel thick and swollen. I believe this has caused my ears to discharge at times, and also caused me to be slightly hard of hearing. Also seems to make me short of breath when at work. What is the cause of this trouble?

Second—About ten days ago, I was taken with a very sharp pain under my left shoulder and in the region of the heart. At times it was so severe that I could hardly stand it. I am still troubled with it to a slight degree. I have been troubled with this pain at different times for the last 20 years. What can be done to relieve the pain?

Third—I have a metallic taste in my mouth all the time during the last ten days. I have been drinking one tea-cupful of milk daily all summer at meal times. Do you think it is due to this? My temperature is below normal. It runs from 97½ to 98½. Do you think my lung will eliminate the tubercular matter if I keep well? The right side of my chest is considerably flatter than the left. Sometimes I get little blisters on my chest or on my right arm, which stay about a week, then dry up and disappear. I read your lectures with great interest and would be thankful for any advice which you may give. Respectfully yours, J. W. W.

The description which you have given of your case indicates that you are afflicted with phthisis, but that it has not progressed to such an extent but what you can probably overcome the disease by a removal to the proper climate and careful diet and exercise. Without more definite information, it is difficult for me to tell to what the metallic taste in your mouth is due. It might possibly be attributed to some medicine which you have been taking.

You should also use the vegetable remedy, of which I have written you in a private letter, which would build you up generally and aid in throwing off the poisonous matter.

There is a series of lectures upon the subject of Consumption in its various stages given in Volume Two of the Home Health Club Books. These lectures have been published in the papers and then in book form. I think you would be wise to procure it and read it carefully.

All communications for the Home Health Club should be addressed to Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind., and contain name and address in full and at least four cents in postage.

To Remove Moles.

Moles or brown spots may be caused by a condition of the system when the liver does not do its work properly. Sometimes, however, they are merely a skin difficulty. A lotion that is recommended for removing them is 60 grains of salicylic acid with four ounces of bay rum. Apply night and morning with a soft cloth or sponge over the spot. It will make a redness that should be relieved by the use of glycerine or starch. Eat simple food, attend to it that the liver acts regularly and, if possible, exercise much out of doors.—Chicago Daily News.

THE NAVAL COLUMN CHARGING UP THE BEACH.

the other side of the peninsula. Here a line of defenses was begun in order to repel any advance of the Confederates from Wilmington. It was seen that the fire from the navy was doing much damage, and an assault was determined upon for the afternoon of the 15th. Terry was to send in three brigades in columns of a brigade front to storm the land side, while 2,000 sailors and marines should assail the works on the sea side.

The Confederate garrison of the fort numbered 1,500 men. General Whiting, Confederate commander of the department of North Carolina, had entered the fort from Wilmington on the 13th, after the hostile armada and troops appeared, and had told the commandant, Colonel Lamb, that he and his command were to be left to their fate, for General Bragg was looking for a position to which to retreat and would not aid in defending the fortress.

The preparations for assault were discovered in the fort, and an attempt was made to confuse the Federal columns by firing grape, but the storms of shot that swept the works from navy guns cut down the Confederates' cannoniers at an appalling rate, and it was evident that the danger could only be averted by hand to hand struggles on the walls. At 3 o'clock promptly the signal for assault was given by the noise of more than fifty steam whistles of Porter's fleet, and the land column sprang forward to the charge.

General N. M. Curtis' brigade had the lead in the charging line and pushed forward to the northwest bastion, near the river. The Confederates were seen to man the parapets the moment the naval fire ceased, which was done to allow the Federal troops to move up. Colonel Lamb judged by the soul stirring whistles that the hour had come, and he desired to receive the assailants on his torpedoes as soon as they reached the walls. Leaving instructions with the commander of the north-west front, he went to the angle of the works where the naval column had been sighted, fearing that that was the vital point. The sailors had landed successfully and halted beyond rifle range under cover of the sand hills that formed the surface of the beach. The men were in one long line and made a formidable show, deceiving the enemy into the belief that this was the main assault and dividing his garrison. At the signal the sailors moved down the beach, sheltered by a line of sand hills, and then turned squarely upon had to be waded through, at some points waist deep. The fire from the fort was scattering, but when the parapets were reached they could not be scaled and had to be cut away. When Curtis' flags crowned the breastworks the division commander, General Ames, who was up at the front, immediately ordered Colonel Pennypacker's brigade to his support, for the first success was no more than a lodgment. The stronghold was in the shot proof chambers, where every foot of ground could be disputed, and to the defense of them the Confederates rallied. General Whiting, moving down the line from right to left, had led some men to the first chamber, held by Curtis, and succeeded in recovering that and the adjoining parapets, although he received wounds that cost him his life.

Colonel Lamb had gone outside the parapets in order to get a view of the distant parts. He found the front covered with assailants and also discovered that his torpedo wires had been destroyed by the navy shots that had plowed the sand many feet deep, and these terrible weapons were useless. But the garrison was fighting bravely, and Lamb cheered them with the hope that the fort could be held until dark, when Bragg would come to their aid from Wilmington. His sharpshooters cut down all the Federal color bearers, and the hostile flags vanished from the outer walls. The traverses which intersected the parapets every few yards now became barricades, over which the combatants fought, often at arm's length.

The Federal naval column was out of the fight entirely, and the guns on the vessels kept up a steady fire along the sea face wall, where the sailors had been repulsed. Gradually taking a wider target, they poured their shots into the active Confederate batteries. This greatly demoralized the garrison, and the assault was rapidly pushed by the remainder of General Ames' division. Some of the sailors on leaving the ground where they charged on the sea face had gone north into the works of the land column. Here they were formed into parties to defend the trenches against a rear attack on Ames, and all of the troops of the army were sent down to the fort. A desperate struggle over the parapets and traverses was maintained until 10 o'clock at night, the Confederates making a heroic defense until overpowered. The concluding features of this remarkable fight will be described in a succeeding article.
